

94th GENERAL ASSEMBLY
ARKANSAS
LEGISLATIVE GUIDE
2023

Electric Cooperatives of Arkansas

A MESSAGE FROM BILL GOSSAGE

Vice President of Governmental Affairs
Electric Cooperatives of Arkansas

The first electric cooperatives in Arkansas were formed in 1937, just two years after the federal Rural Electrification Act was signed into law. Today, 17 electric cooperatives serve more than one million Arkansans in 74 of the state’s 75 counties. From humble beginnings, the Electric Cooperatives of Arkansas now have ownership in 13 electric generating plants, own one of the leading transformer manufacturers in the nation and produce the most widely circulated publication in the state, Arkansas Living magazine.

Our mission is to provide reliable and affordable electricity in a safe and responsible manner to our members. As nonprofit cooperatives, the electric cooperatives are owned by their members and advocate on their behalf to improve the quality of life in Arkansas. By using a mix of fuel sources such as hydroelectric, natural gas, coal, solar, biomass and wind, we are able to fulfill our mission.

This roster of the 94th Arkansas General Assembly, the Constitutional Officers and the Arkansas Congressional delegation is provided as a public service. We express our appreciation and gratitude to the men and women who have chosen to serve in public office.

REACH

950,000 Arkansans Interested and Informed

In 1946, the first issue of the Arkansas REA News was distributed to members of the state's electric cooperatives, educating members about issues of importance to the cooperatives during the critical early years of the rural electrification movement. Today, Arkansas Living magazine, is still going strong with 950,000 readers each and every month. With its entertaining articles, compelling photographs of rural Arkansas and ever-popular recipes, it has truly become a cooperative institution—and a great way to reach a growing and diverse rural population.

MEMBERS: We value members.

Serving members is the reason cooperatives exist. We keep members’ concerns, interests, and goals at the forefront of our business activities, and we make decisions to benefit the collective, long-term.

EMPLOYEES: We value employees.

Employees have always been, and will continue to be, the cooperative’s greatest resource. We will invest in our employees through training and development, maintaining competitive pay and benefits packages and providing an environment that gives employees the opportunity to perform their best work.

FAMILY: We value a family-friendly work environment.

We recognize family and the importance of those that support our employees. We provide an environment where employees feel supported in their efforts to harmonize their work and home lives. We offer resources that support employee needs and foster personal development.

SAFETY: We value safe work performance.

Safety is a core value and is implemented through process, training, management, and accountability. All employees are entitled to a work environment where hazards are minimized, and unnecessary risk is not tolerated. Employees who want to work for the cooperative are required to work safely or they cannot be cooperative employees.

INTEGRITY: We value ethical and compliant action.

The cooperative holds all employees to high standards of ethical and compliant behavior. This means we must follow applicable laws, rules, regulations and other guidance provided for employees’ work. Our environment is one where employees can, and should, voice opinions or concerns when ethical, or non-compliant, behaviors are at issue. The cooperative provides multiple avenues for reporting such concerns, including an anonymous reporting hotline. We do what is right, even if it is not easy.

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY: We value strong financial health.

We are good stewards of our members’ money and consistently seek affordable, high-value options. We prepare for necessary expenditures and ensure there are sufficient resources to meet business needs. The cooperative will not take actions that negatively affect our long-term financial standing. When excess margins exist at the end of the fiscal year, those are returned to our members in the form of patronage.

COOPERATIVE PRINCIPLES: We value the seven cooperative principles.

By living the seven cooperative principles daily, we operate differently from other electric utilities. Our not-for-profit business model allows us to make the best long-term decisions for our members and communities, which is what the cooperative principles are all about.
